SITHARAMAN TO MEET REPRESENTATIVES ON NOVEMBER 26

Govt invites Gen Z, students, youths at pre-Budget talks

PRASANTA SAHU
New Delhi, November 23

INVOLVING THE 'YUVA'

27% of India's population is aged 15-29

370-380mn people fall in the youth age group

₹2 lakh cr package announced in Budget 2024-25 for 41 million youth

50,000 Atal Tinkering Labs proposed in Budget 2025-26

5 National Centres of Excellence for Skilling proposed

■AI Centre of Excellence in education announced in Budget 2025-26

■Earlier in Feb, 30 college students were invited to watch presentation of Union Budget for FY27

FOR THE FIRST time, the government is reaching out to a wider cross-section of young Indians ahead of the Union Budget, bringing university and college students, student organisations, student political groups, professional institutions, youth associations and young leaders into its pre-Budget consultation process.

The move signals an effort to give Gen Zs a greater say in shaping the country's economic priorities, rather than viewing young people merely as beneficiaries of government schemes.

Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman's pre-Budget consultations, which began with economists on November 16, will conclude on November 26 with a dedicated interaction with the 'yuva'.

The likely participants in the November 26 meeting include students from colleges and universities, student political organisations such as the Akhil Bharatiya Vidyarthi Parishad (ABVP), professional education institutions and leaders of youth associations, sources said.

The expanded outreach comes at a time when jobs, skills, education, entrepreneurship and the impact of emerging technologies are increasingly shaping the aspirations of India's younger population.

Under the National Youth Policy, people in the 15-29 age group account for around 27% of India's population, translating into an estimated 370-380 million people. Their expectations from the economy, particularly regarding employment opportunities, quality education and access to new-age skills, are likely to influence India's growth trajectory.

Youth have been among the four key groups repeatedly highlighted by Prime Minister Narendra Modi in his vision of Viksit Bharat, alongside the poor, women and farmers. This emphasis has also found expression in successive Budgets, with the government stepping up allocations and announcing programmes focused on employment, education and skill development.

The Union Budget FY25 announced a ₹2 lakh crore package aimed at benefiting 41 million youth through employment-linked incentives, internships and skilling programmes. The FY26 Budget further reinforced this focus with proposals to establish 50,000 Atal Tinkering Labs, five National Centres of Excellence for Skilling and an AI Centre of Excellence in education, among other measures.

Sitharaman has also sought to involve students in the Budget exercise in the past. In January 2026, she interacted with students of the Delhi School of Economics, who shared suggestions on skilling, green energy, rural development and emerging sectors. A month later, 30 college students from across the country were invited to watch the presentation of the Union Budget FY27 from the Lok Sabha gallery.

The November 26 interaction, however, marks a broader attempt to take these conversations beyond a handful of academic institutions and engage a more diverse group of young people.

While there is no direct link, the BJP-led NDA government has stepped up its outreach to young people against the backdrop of student led political upheavals in the region. In 2024, student protests in Bangladesh led to the ouster of the Sheikh Hasina government, while a youth-led uprising in Nepal in 2025, widely known as the Gen Z Revolution, unseated KP Sharma Oli's government.

India third-largest power in Asia, gap with China narrows

- Modi 2nd only to Xi in regional leadership ranking

6	Australia	Middle Power (15–39.9)	31.8	31.7	-0.1

INDIA HAS NARROWED its "power gap" with China to its lowest level since 2018 and consolidated its position as Asia's third-most powerful nation, backed by improving diplomatic influence, stronger investment prospects and expanding regional security partnerships, according to the Lowy Institute's 2026 Asia Power Index.

India also ranked second in investment attractiveness, ahead of China, Australia, Indonesia and Vietnam. This indicator assesses inward foreign capital investment over a decade.

India's overall score in the power index rose 0.5 points to 40.5, while China's declined 0.1 points to 73.6, narrowing the gap between the two countries. India recorded the largest improvement among Asia's top 10 powers and was the only country in the group to receive an upward trend marker.

The country retained third place for the third consecutive edition, behind the United States and China, while widening its lead over Japan. India was the only country classified in the index's "Major Power" tier, below the two superpowers.

India ranked fourth when the index was first introduced in 2018 and held that position until 2023. It overtook Japan in 2024 and crossed the 40-point threshold in 2025, regaining its major-power status.

Prime Minister Narendra Modi also climbed three places as second in the regional leadership rankings, up from fifth in 2025, with Chinese President Xi Jinping retaining the top position. A Lowy expert survey rated Modi more highly for his effectiveness in advancing India's diplomatic interests across Asia.

India topped the index's armed forces indicator with a score of 100, ahead of China (85.3) and the US (64.8). The indicator assesses active military and paramilitary forces, taking into account their size, training, readiness and organisation, rather than overall capability.

The country also ranked first in demographic resources through 2050, scoring 100, compared with China's 39.6, and the US's 33.2, reflecting India's long-term potential in terms of its working-age population.

In economic resilience, India ranked third with 68.3 points, behind China (75.3) and the US (73.5). The indicator measures countries' ability to withstand external economic pressures.

White-collar hiring set to rebound

- foundit projects about 13.8 mn new jobs in 2027

MANU KAUSHIK
New Delhi, November 23

BOOMING JOB MARKET

WHITE-COLLAR HIRING IN India is projected to grow 8.2% in 2027, more than double the 3.3% growth recorded in 2026, according to the latest report by foundit. The year is expected to see 13.8 million job opportunities.

Consumer electronics is expected to lead hiring growth at 14.3%, followed by retail at 14% and manufacturing at 12%. BFSI (banking, financial services and insurance) and logistics, both of which saw a decline in hiring in 2026, are also expected to rebound, with growth of 10% and 10.2%, respectively. Demand for technology professionals is also likely to spread across industries.

The report shows that employers continue to favour experienced professionals. Those with seven to 10 years of experience recorded the highest hiring growth of 8.6% in 2026, while entry-level hiring grew by just 0.7%, while demand for professionals with four to six years of experience declined by 0.4%.

In 2027, hiring of professionals with seven to 10 years of experience is projected to grow by 7.3%, the highest among all experience categories. Entry-level hiring, meanwhile, is expected to improve to 4.6%.

foundit Chief Executive Tarun Sinha said 2026 had been a year of measured hiring. "Employers expanded their teams thoughtfully and placed a premium on experienced professionals. Sectors like real estate, travel and healthcare added momentum, even as BFSI and IT services remained cautious. The strong demand for tech roles outside the IT sector shows how widely these skills are now needed."

As hiring picks up in 2027, Sinha said, growth is expected to extend to newer cities, sectors and to early-career professionals. However, the recovery will not be uniform across industries. While hiring is expected to pick up across most sectors, some are likely to remain under pressure. Shipping and maritime is projected to see an 11% decline in hiring in 2027, the steepest among all industries, followed by agriculture at 6% and import and export at 4%.

Travel and tourism, which recorded strong hiring growth in 2026, is also projected to see a 3.7% decline in 2027, according to foundit.

Govt flags WhatsApp Web hacking risks

FE BUREAU
New Delhi, November 23

THE UNION HOME AFFAIRS Ministry's cybercrime arm has cautioned users that an active WhatsApp Web session can be misused to take over an account, putting messages, contacts and the account holder's trusted identity at risk.

In a recent advisory, the National Cybercrime Threat Analytics Unit (NCTAU) of the Indian Cyber Crime Coordination Centre (I4C) said a malicious person could read messages, send texts while impersonating the owner, and access contacts and group conversations. The trusted identity of the account holder could then be used for fraud, phishing and social engineering.

The unit said the risk was particularly high on office computers, shared systems and public devices. It advised users against exchanging government, organisational, financial, confidential or other sensitive information through WhatsApp Web on computers.

Users have been advised to manually log out after every session, as simply closing a browser window or tab does not terminate an authenticated session. The unit also cautioned against keeping WhatsApp Web permanently logged in and recommended using private browsing mode on a trusted computer if access is unavoidable.

It further advised users against logging in to WhatsApp Web through cyber cafes, public kiosks, hotel business centres, borrowed computers or other untrusted systems.
